Biggest Product Constraint	Changed materially this run. Per-user data scoping — Brief 06's biggest weakness — is CONFIRMED RESOLVED at the route level. The new biggest weakness is what that resolution exposed underneath it: Squad authorization is CONFIRMED BROKEN (unauthenticated list/leaderboard, no privacy enforcement) and database-level ownership integrity is CONFIRMED BROKEN (nullable, unenforced foreign keys). Fixing the application-layer scoping bug surfaced two more specific, verified problems underneath it — a common and honest pattern when a foundational gap gets fixed, not a sign the fix didn't work.
Biggest Competitor Threat	Unchanged from Brief 06, not re-verified this run — Google's Gemini-powered Google Health Premium ($9.99/mo, reads HRV/sleep/activity-load, generates adaptive recovery-and-training guidance at platform scale). This cycle's effort went to product-source verification, not a fresh competitor pass; treat this line as one day stale, not re-confirmed.

07 — Vital Sync Positioning

Unchanged, and now with one more resolved point in its favor — the Alignment engine and the real GPT-4o-mini coach chat remain genuinely well-built, and this run additionally confirmed the earlier VAPID private-key concern does not apply (server-side only, no exposure found). The gap is still data supply (wearables) and now also the missing Directive connective layer, not engineering quality or pricing.
